Wadi Rum is a valley in the south of Jordan with spectacular desert landscapes and prehistoric archaeological sites. The towering cliffs, high sand dunes and bold rock formations are awe-inspiring. Travellers can explore the area by taking a jeep tour, but a more unusual way to travel through it is riding on the back of a camel.

Riding on a camel through the red deserts of Wadi Rum is a unique experience. Since ancient times, camels have always been among the most useful transport tools in Jordanian history. They can store enormous quantities of water. Visitors to the valley can go on a three-day camel safari trip that includes camping overnight in tents. They can see unforgettable views at sunrise or sunset. They can observe the unique plant and animal wildlife of the area. There are more Nabatean rock carvings of people and animals in the narrow canyon of Jebel Khaz'ali.
