subject: Choir

Hi Anna,

I went to Choir after school today. It was really good. 😊
We sang some very funny songs. Mrs Hall helps us and she tells us when to start and stop. Today she told us about a singing competition. We're going to enter it. It's in December and we are going to practise songs every week. Did you know? I'm in the choir photo on the school website. Are you going to join the choir? It's not too late. There is a school concert in December, too!

Hi Candy,

The choir sounds fun and I can come next week. I love singing! 😊

I went to Computer Club on Tuesday. It was brilliant!

We learnt animation. We used a special computer program. In my animation a girl threw a ball and a boy caught it. Danny did a good one, too. In his animation a fish swam through the seaweed and made bubbles. Then a funny snail moved across the sand. You can see it on the school website. Click on Computer Club then on Swimming fish. It's really funny! 😊 😊

See you tomorrow.

Hi Sam,

Look at this! My dad took this picture yesterday at Swimming Club. It's me! I moved through the water very quickly. I swam 50 metres in 40.6 seconds. That was fantastic! I was the fastest swimmer in my group. My coach was really pleased. The club record is 36.2 seconds. Can I swim faster and break the record? I don't know but I can try!

Did you have a good time at Chess Club?

Pete

to: Pete from: Sam
subject: Chess Club

Hello Pete,

Your picture is great. You look like a big fish with black eyes!

Chess Club was OK. I played against Ben and I won but then I played against Anna and I lost. Anna's really good at chess and I didn't play well. I was too tired after our sports lesson. We ran two kilometres!

I broke one of my chess pieces last week and I'm going to get a new chess game for my birthday. I looked on the internet. I really like this one. The chess pieces are wood and the board is wood, too. They're not going to break easily.

I must do my homework now, Maths 😊😊
English 😊 and Science 😊.

Red Riding Hood

Red Riding Hood lived in the forest. Her father was a woodcutter. Every day he cut and chopped wood in the forest. One morning, Red Riding Hood's mother said to her, "Here is a cake and a bottle of fruit juice. Take them to Grandmother but don't talk to anyone on the way."

Red Riding Hood put on her red cloak with a hood and set off through the forest. The sun was shining and the birds were singing. The forest was beautiful and Red Riding Hood soon forgot her mother's words. She put down her basket and picked some pretty blue flowers.

Just then a wolf came along the path. He saw Red Riding Hood and he stopped beside her.

"Good morning, my dear. Where are you going today?" he asked.

"Oh! Good morning," answered Red Riding Hood politely. "I am going to my grandmother's house. She lives all alone at the edge of the wood. I am picking these flowers for her."

"You are a kind girl," said the wolf in a friendly voice. "Look! There are some lovely yellow flowers over there."

"Oh yes," said Red Riding Hood. "Thank you."

The wolf disappeared into the forest and Red Riding Hood picked an enormous bunch of flowers.

At last she came to her grandmother's house. She knocked on the door and went in.

The curtains were closed and at first she could see nothing. It was too dark. She felt a little scared but she was a brave girl and she did not run away. Then she saw Grandmother sitting up in her bed. She was wearing her pretty pink shawl and she had her big white nightcap on her head but she looked very strange.

Red Riding Hood said, "Oh, Grandmother, you have enormous ears."

"I can hear you with these ears," said her grandmother.

Red Riding Hood said, "Oh, Grandmother, you have enormous eyes."

"I can see you with these eyes," said her grandmother.

Red Riding Hood said, "Oh, Grandmother, you have a huge nose."

"I can smell you with this nose," said her grandmother and her big nose twitched a little.

Red Riding Hood said worriedly, "Oh, Grandmother, you have lots of big, shiny, white teeth."

"I can eat you with these big, shiny, white teeth!" roared her grandmother and she leapt out of the bed.

It was the wolf!

"Help!" screamed Red Riding Hood.

Suddenly, the door opened and her father stood in the doorway with his sharp, heavy axe. At once, the wolf jumped out of the window and ran away. He was not brave at all.

A sound came from the cupboard. They opened the door and there was Grandmother! She was frightened but safe and they never saw the wolf again.

Birds of the oceans and lakes

Ocean birds Albatross

Albatrosses are the most amazing travellers.

The great albatross has the longest wings in the world and it can fly 400 kilometres in a day. Albatrosses can grab fish from the sea easily because they have hooked beaks. They can dive under the water and some of them can dive down 12 metres.

Albatrosses live for 50–60 years. Unfortunately, these beautiful birds are in danger. Fishing boats pull huge nets through the ocean. The nets trap many albatrosses when they dive in the water and the birds drown.

More than 100,000 albatrosses die in this way every year.

An albatross chick stays on land for 9 months.

Penguin

Some penguins live in very cold places. Others live in warm places. The Emperor penguin is the tallest. It is 110 cm tall. The smallest is the Little Blue penguin. It is only 40 cm tall. Penguins can see well underwater so they can catch fish in the ocean. The Emperor penguin can dive down 565 m and it can stay underwater for 20 minutes.

Penguins cannot fly but they are excellent swimmers.

Lake and river birds

Swan

Swans build the most enormous nests in plants near the water.

The mother and father birds build a nest from twigs and small branches. They stay together for life. The mother bird lays 4–7 eggs.

A baby swan is a cygnet. The parents can carry the cygnets on their backs when they are very young.

These wide, flat feet help the swan to swim. Many water birds have webbed feet like these.

Swans live on rivers and small lakes. Usually, they are white but sometimes swans have black heads and necks. The young cygnets are grey. They are not as beautiful as the adult birds but slowly their white feathers appear. After a year, they are as strong and graceful as their parents.

Goose

A baby goose is a gosling.

The plural of goose is geese. Many geese are wild but you can see geese on farms, too. They live near water. They can swim well and they can fly over the land. When they fly together they make a huge V in the sky.

Making things we use

Pots

This potter makes: plates, cups, bowls, vases and lots of different pots, of course. He uses clay and he has a special wheel.

First he cuts the clay. It is heavy and sticky.

Then he pushes and pulls the clay. He makes a large, smooth lump.

Next he throws the clay onto the wheel. He throws the clay hard because it must stick onto the wheel.

He makes the wheel turn slowly and he shapes the clay.

Gradually, he turns the wheel faster. Carefully, he pulls up the sides of the pot.

When the pot is a good shape the potter cuts it off the wheel.

He dries the pot slowly. Sometimes he bakes his pots in a big oven.

Finally, he paints the pot.

The pot is shiny and it has beautiful colours. Potters also make coil pots and pinch pots. They do not use a wheel to make these pots.

Cloth

This weaver is making cloth. She is using wool and a loom. The threads on the loom go from the top to the bottom. The weaver pushes the wool between the threads.

Baskets

People all over the world make baskets. This woman is weaving reeds together. Some people cut long, straight twigs. They are not as soft as reeds so they cut the twigs with sharp knives.

Candles

Candle makers dip string into hot wax. The wax goes cold and hard. They do this lots of times and the candle gets fatter and fatter.

Sometimes they heat the wax then they pour it into metal or plastic moulds. The wax cools. When the wax is cold and hard, they open the mould and take out the candle.

Candlelight makes everything look pretty.

Reading A dance festival

Olga and Mathew won tickets for an international dance festival. Olga saw a Russian ballet. The dancers were from Moscow. Mathew saw dancers from Japan and Palestine. Olga and Mathew wrote about the festival for their English project.

There were dancers from forty-two countries at the festival. On Tuesday I went to see The Nutcracker. The dancers were from Moscow. While we were waiting for the start, I was reading the story of the ballet in the programme.

The Nutcracker was about a girl called Clara. One evening, there was a family party at her home. Clara had a present. It was a big wooden nutcracker. It looked like a toy soldier and Clara liked it very much. After the party everyone went to bed. Clara could not sleep and at midnight she got up and found her nutcracker. Suddenly, strange things happened. A huge mouse king appeared with his army of giant mice. They attacked Clara but the nutcracker came alive and protected Clara. Toy soldiers joined in the battle. They fought the mice and the nutcracker killed the mouse king.

When the mouse king died, the nutcracker changed into a prince. He took Clara to the Land of Snow and then to the Land of Sweets. They watched dancers from around the world. There was a Spanish dance, a Chinese dance, an Arabian dance and a Russian dance. When the dancers disappeared, Clara was in her home again and she was holding the wooden nutcracker. It was all a dream.

I loved this ballet! The story was exciting. The fight between the soldiers and the giant mice was really good and the dancers were graceful. When the ballet finished, I felt really happy. Then we went outside and the streets were silent and gloomy. The ballet seemed like a dream, just like Clara's!

Olga Brown
Class 4b

On Wednesday afternoon, I saw dancers from Japan. The first dance was very old and all the performers were women. In old Japanese dances, the women dancers often hold something. Usually, it is either a fan or an umbrella.

Only men perform some dances. The last dance told a story about two characters: a young soldier and an evil king. The soldier was the hero and he was strong and brave. The evil king's costume was black and gold. He wore a mask with fierce eyes. He looked really scary!

In the evening I saw a group of brilliant dancers from Palestine. While the dancers were performing, Palestinian musicians were playing on drums and pipes. The dances were fast and the men leapt high in the air. This is the poster for the show. You can see how exciting the dances were.

Reading Old customs in the modern world

People live in all parts of the world. Most people live in towns and cities but other people live hundreds of kilometres from the nearest city. They live on high mountains. They live in hot deserts and in snowy forests. They keep animals for food. They make their clothes and homes. They are different to people who live in large towns and cities because they do not need lots of shops, cars and lorries. They do not use much electricity or water.

Weavers of South America

The Incas lived in Peru in South America. Five hundred years ago they were very rich and powerful. They had many large cities and they were good fighters. They had gold, silver and jewels. They kept many animals and they had good food and clothes. Then explorers from Spain came. They fought the Incas and captured their king. After that, the Spanish ruled over the Incas.

Each village has special patterns.

Children learn the patterns. They weave thin ribbons.

The Incas spoke the Quechua language. Quechua people are still living in Peru today. They keep sheep and goats in the mountains. They get wool from the animals. They spin the wool and weave it into cloth. They make patterns in the cloth. The patterns are like the old Inca patterns.

Women carry their babies or fruit and vegetables in the cloth. Men carry firewood and corn.

Herdsman of northern Europe

The Sami people live in northern Europe. It is very cold in winter and there is always a lot of snow on the ground. Some Sami people are nomads. That means they travel from one place to another. They keep big herds of reindeer. They live in tents and when the reindeer need new grass, they pack up their tents and move on.

Farmers of Tibet

The Tibetan people live near the highest mountain in the world. Some Tibetans are nomads. They keep sheep and goats. Tibetan farmers use yaks on their farms. The yaks pull carts and ploughs.

Tibetans enjoy plays with music and dance. The actors wear amazing costumes and masks.

Yaks are strong animals.

Travellers in the desert

The Bedouin people live in hot places. Some Bedouin travel through the desert. Like the Sami people, they keep animals and live in tents. When they move the animals, they can take their tents with them. They hunt with falcons so their families have more food. Nowadays not many Bedouin live in the desert all the time. Many of them live in houses in towns and villages but they still fly falcons in the desert.

Falcons catch other birds.

Falcons are beautiful birds with sharp beaks and watchful eyes.

A message for the Inca king

It was before dawn when Poma heard a voice. "Wake up, Poma, wake up!" somebody whispered. Poma opened his eyes. In the dim moonlight, he saw the face of his old teacher. Poma sat up in surprise.

"Sh!" said his teacher. "Don't speak. Get dressed and follow me."

Hurriedly, Poma put on his tunic. The other boys were sleeping. He stepped quietly past them and followed the old man outside.

As silent as shadows they crossed the courtyard and entered the great hall. Poma's teacher led him towards a small doorway in one corner. Messengers did not usually go through it. The rooms behind the hall were part of the palace. Suddenly, the old man stopped and spoke.

"Listen, Poma," he said. "You are the youngest messenger in the palace but nobody runs as fast as you. You are not yet seventeen but you are as brave as any man. Now, you have an important task. Come."

Poma followed the old man through the narrow doorway and along a short passage. They entered a large room where lamps burned brightly. The golden walls glowed like the evening sun. Two men stood near the doorway. They were talking quietly. They stopped when they saw Poma. Their tunics were fine wool with delicate patterns of gold. "These are important people," thought Poma.

A table stood in the middle of the room with a gold chair next to it. There were silver cups on the table but the chair was empty. Poma heard his teacher say, "This is the boy, Prince Urco."

A tall man appeared from the shadows. He wore a heavy cloak over his tunic. Bands of gold circled his head and his arms. A collar of gold and rare jewels was around his neck. He beckoned to Poma and the boy stepped forward.

The prince looked carefully at Poma for a moment. "You are strong," he said, "but you must be clever, too. You must take a message to the king. You must remember every word." He leaned forward and spoke clearly. "Repeat," he commanded. Poma repeated the message. The prince nodded. "Now go," he said, "and do not fail."

Poma left the room and ran back through the hall. He crossed the shadowy courtyard and ran out onto the road. Then he ran straight on, out of the city gates and towards the forest. "I must not fail," he repeated. "I must not fail."

Paper

The Chinese invented paper about 2,000 years ago. They made it from different plants. At first they used it for wrapping things, then they used it for writing and drawing on. This picture shows leaves and flowers.

Paper was most useful for books. For hundreds of years, people wrote books. They used pens and ink and it took a long time. Then one of the most important inventions appeared.

Printing

Chinese people first printed on cloth more than 2,000 years ago. They cut a pattern on a block of wood. They put dye on the woodblock then they pressed the block onto the cloth. The block printed the pattern. They could use the block again and again. Sometimes the cloth was silk. The Chinese invented silk, too. This piece of silk is a beautiful curtain.

Later the Chinese printed words on paper. They cut words on the woodblock. This was difficult work. They put ink on the block then they pressed the paper onto it. The woodblock printed the words onto the paper.

The printers printed one page at a time but they could print with the block many times. They could make many copies of each book. More people could have books. The oldest printed book in the world is from China. It is more than 1,100 years old.

The compass

A long time ago, sailors used the stars at night. They could find north, south, east and west. When it was cloudy, they could not see the stars and sometimes they lost their way.

The Chinese made a discovery. A special stone made a metal needle point to north. They floated the needle in a bowl of water and it pointed to north. It worked at sea when it was cloudy and completely dark. It worked on land in the daytime, too. People could find north and then they could follow a map. They could find their way to new places.

Gunpowder

Chinese scientists discovered gunpowder 1,100 years ago. First they found a kind of salt. It burned with a purple flame. They mixed it with other salts. When they put the mixture in a metal box and heated it, the box exploded. It was a very powerful mixture.

They used the gunpowder to make fireworks. Chinese people still make fireworks. They are the best in the world. If you go to a firework display, you will see Chinese fireworks. They explode in the sky in different shapes and colours.

1964	her daughter was born, trained as a cosmonaut engineer
1969–97	worked in the Russian Air Force
2007	told her dream: a flight to Mars

Valentina Tereshkova was born on 6th March, 1937 near the city of Yaroslavl in western Russia. Her father was a tractor driver. Her mother worked in a factory.

When she was two years old, her father died in a war-time battle. She started school when she was eight. At seventeen, she started working in a factory. Valentina enjoyed learning so she continued her education in her free time.

There was a flying club in Yaroslavl. Valentina joined and she learned to sky-dive. She made her first parachute jump on 21st May, 1959. She was 22 years old.

She became a spinning engineer at the factory but she parachuted from planes many times.

In 1961 the Russian space engineers had an idea. They wanted a Russian to be the first woman cosmonaut. The woman could not be too tall or too heavy. She had to be young enough and fit enough to fly in space. This was the description:

age – under 30 years old weight – under 70 kg height – under 170 cm
important: she must be able to parachute.

Valentina fitted this description.

More than 50 young women did the tests but only a few women were good enough. Valentina and four other women joined the space programme in February, 1962.

Valentina trained hard. In November the space engineers chose her for the special flight. "You will be the first woman in space," they told her. Valentina was delighted.

The Vostok 6 spacecraft.

At last the day of the flight arrived. On 16th June, 1963 Valentina took off in the spacecraft Vostok 6. The flight lasted almost three days. During the flight she spoke to people on the ground. Her call sign was Chaika. In English this means seagull. This is the word in Russian: Yáika.

In November she married another cosmonaut. Her husband was Andrian Nikolayev. Their daughter, Elena was born in 1964. Valentina trained as a cosmonaut engineer then she worked in the Russian Air Force until 1997.

Valentina Tereshkova became a Hero of the Soviet Union. She received the United Nations Gold Medal of Peace. On her seventieth birthday she told a newspaper reporter: "I still have one dream: a flight to Mars. It is the dream of all cosmonauts."

The Sami people

The first Sami people arrived in Europe 7,000 years ago. For thousands of years, they travelled across northern Europe. Today, Sami live in the far north of four countries: Sweden, Norway, Finland and Russia. Sami call this area Sapmi.

The reindeer herds

In the past, the Sami were nomads and they followed the reindeer herds. They used the reindeer for food, clothes and tools. They made tents and boots from reindeer skin. They made coats and hats from their wool. They carved needles, spoons and knives from their antlers.

Later, some Sami people stayed on the coast and became fishermen and farmers but the reindeer have always been important. In the Sami language there are 400 different words that describe reindeer. Sami still keep reindeer now but very few people follow their herds. They keep them in one large area. Some herders use snow scooters when they herd the reindeer. These are much faster than sledges or skis.

Sami clothes

The Sami people make trousers, skirts and jackets from wool cloth. Usually it is blue. Sometimes it is red or green. Their clothes have colourful borders. They make hats and boots from reindeer fur. Sami people wear this clothing on special days. This is their national costume and they are proud of it. This woman is wearing a red dress. It has a border of green and yellow. There is a long blue, yellow and green fringe on her dress and she is wearing silver jewellery. Her hat is tall with a blue, yellow and green border. She is wearing a belt and there is a small bag on it. She is wearing gloves and she is holding a small white reindeer. She has got long fair hair and she is smiling. She looks very happy and friendly.

The Sami today

The Sami people have changed their lives. Once, they were nomads. Now many Sami live in towns and villages. They work in hospitals, schools and factories. They speak other languages but there are schools where children learn their lessons in Sami. There are newspapers, radio and TV programmes in Sami and they have their own national flag.

More and more people visit Sami towns and villages. They like the Sami crafts and clothes. The land is beautiful in winter. There is snow from November to May. In Sapmi you might see the northern lights and in summer you can see the sun at midnight.

The Golden Mask of Chapichapi Part 5: Where are Alfie's sandwiches?

There you are, children! Where did you go?

Hello, Miss Carey. We went on a journey into space.

Excellent!

Who are these people, Miss Carey?

These are the Sami people.

I know about them. They kept reindeer.

That's right. They used their reindeer for everything.

Did they eat reindeer?

Yes, that woman has put reindeer meat in her pot. Now she's cooking it over the fire.

I'm hungry. I've got some sandwiches in my bag.

Are they reindeer sandwiches?

They might be! Wait a minute! This isn't my bag!

Yes, it is.

No, it isn't. Look what's inside.

A coat... a hat... some sunglasses... a beard?

I know what's happened.

The thief has taken your bag and you've got his!

Quick! We must find him!

Is your team winning?

No, they're losing.

Oh dear...

There's still time.
They might win.

Not a chance.

They might score three goals.

I don't think so.

Oh! The referee's blowing his whistle.

It's all over.

Well... they might win their next match.

And they might not...

1 Talk about the picture. Write about the people. Describe the people.

The lost city

The adventure began when Jenny sat next to a giant ear.

"I'm too hot and tired to go any further!" she said. "We left the oasis hours ago. It's time for a rest." She put her bag on the hot rock beside her and then exclaimed, "Look at this! It's an enormous ear!"

She stood up and brushed a little sand off the rock. "Here's an eye... and down here, there's a nose. It's a huge face!"

Uncle Jim was amazed. "It's the head of a statue," he said. "But why is it here, in the middle of the desert?"

Pete was looking at the ground. "These big flat stones look like a floor," he said.

He stepped onto the first stone. It slid away under his foot and he nearly fell over. Uncle Jim grabbed his arm. They stared into a narrow dark hole in the ground.

"What's down there?" asked Pete.

Uncle Jim knelt down and shone his torch into the hole.

"What can you see?" asked Pete. Uncle Jim was silent.

"Oh! Isn't there anything down there?" asked Jenny. She sounded disappointed.

"There's a big room down there," said Uncle Jim. "I can see tall pots and furniture. It might be very valuable. I must phone the city museum."

Just then, they heard a distant hum. Jenny looked up. "A car's coming," she said.

"Quick. Let's put this map over the hole," said Uncle Jim. "We shouldn't tell anyone about it. Sometimes people take valuable things and sell them as souvenirs."

"How can we hide the head?" asked Pete.

"I know," said Jenny. "I'll put my big scarf over the head. If we put the water bottles and some fruit on the scarf, it will look like a picnic. Then we'll sit on the head.

Hurry!"

A big silver 4 x 4 roared round the sand dunes. Two men got out and walked across the sand.

"Hi," said the first man. "Are you looking for something special?"

"We're not looking for anything at all," said Uncle Jim. "We're just tourists."

The two men looked at them suspiciously. "If you find anything interesting, we will pay you money for it," said the second man.

"We haven't seen anything interesting all day," said Jenny. "No camel trains, no ruins, not even a date palm. It's all very boring."

The two men drove away and Uncle Jim phoned the museum. He spoke to Professor Hamid for a long time.

Professor Hamid was an archaeologist who worked at the museum. When he arrived, he looked into the hole.

"Have we found something exciting?" asked Pete.

Professor Hamid smiled. "Do you remember the two men who were in the 4 x 4?"

Pete and Jenny nodded. "Those men are looking for something."

"Treasure?" suggested the children at once.

Professor Hamid nodded. "They are looking for a lost city," he said, "and guess what? I think you have found it!"

Speaking

1 Talk about the pictures.

2  Listen and read.

 We'll never find the thief now.

 This is the last room in the museum.

 He might be here somewhere.

 Well, I don't think he's hiding behind those palm trees.

 How about inside the pyramid?

 Come on! Let's have a look.

 Ooh! It's so dark in here.

 This is scary! I don't like it.

 Listen! What's that noise?

 It's coming from that big box.

 Open the lid!

 No! We shouldn't touch anything.

 Alfie! Don't touch it!

 Quick! Come and sit on the lid!

 What's in the box, Alfie?

 Can't you guess? It's the man who stole the golden mask.

 Are you sure?

 I don't believe it!

 It's true! We've caught him!

 We've found the golden mask of Chapichapi!

1 Read and look at the pictures.

Uncle Jim, Pete and Jenny found a lost city in the desert. They told Professor Hamid about it. Professor Hamid and his men dug in the sand.

2 Choose an opening for the story. Which sentence is the most interesting?

Professor Hamid found a door.

Suddenly, Professor Hamid found a strange door.

There was a door.

"Look," said Professor Hamid, "here is a very strange door."

3 Continue the story. What did Professor Hamid do next?

Revision 4

1  Listen and read.

The fantastic journey

Ben's uncle was an astronaut. He sent Ben an e-mail.

When they arrived at the space station, the space rocket was ready.

These are the men who will fly with us today.

They landed in the desert. They went to the city by camel train.

This train isn't fast enough!

It's only a little bit further.

They went to the space station by snow scooter.

A lot of snow has fallen, Ben. We can't go by car. Jump on!

The flight was brilliant. They went twice round the Earth.

We might go to the moon next week.

A few days later, Ben returned home. There were lots of people outside his house.

Only a little time ago, Ben Brown wasn't special at all, but now...

2 Read again then act out the story.

Project 4 - An amazing journey

Look at the map.

Where did you go on your amazing journey? south? north? east? west?
Choose a place or choose two or three places. Find out about the place.

Think about these questions.

Who did you go with? How did you travel?

What did you see? What did you do?

Write about your journey. Draw pictures.

Read your story to the class.

I went to Australia. It is a very hot country. There is a very big desert in the middle of Australia. I like desert animals. I went with... We travelled by... When we arrived we saw...

I went to Antarctica. Antarctica is in the south. It is very cold there. I chose it because I like snow and I wanted to see... First we travelled by... Then we travelled by...

English World

the adventure starts here!

English World is an integrated print and digital English course for primary schools. Written by the authors of the best-selling Way Ahead and Macmillan English, the course aims to give learners confidence in speaking, listening, reading and writing. Thorough grammar and skills work is applied in natural contexts in the real world through dialogues and cross-curricular material. Independent learning is promoted through portfolios, projects and the use of the dictionaries.

The visually stunning printed resources are complemented by electronic materials for use with an interactive whiteboard and videos of all dialogues using native-speaker students in context, together with a complete teacher training package with video masterclasses. Other features include a test builder, animated posters, interactive phonics activities and singalong versions of songs.

The adventure continues in Levels 3 and 4 of English World where children encounter more challenging texts and activity types. Level 4 is for children who are confident communicators and are building up their ability to use different skills.

'We believe that learning should be enjoyable - hard work, too, but at the same time something that children will find interesting and motivating.'
