Reading Strategy

Remember, when we read for detail, we should use the scanning technique. When scanning, it is important to read the questions before starting to read.

We know that many of our readers like adventures and exploring the world. Today, some of our writers want to share three of the most interesting festivals and activities that they have visited this year. Some of these are very famous, others are less known. However, they are all very entertaining for everyone who attends.

Rashid Al Marzougi - Castles made of ice

Many of my readers know that I like to travel to China. I really enjoy the culture and the beautiful nature. Last January, I visited Harbin, a large city in the northern region of China. Many people do not know that northern China gets very cold in the winter. Local people celebrate by making giant sculptures from ice. They are made by 10,000 workers. The huge event area has some of the largest ice sculptures in the world. The tallest are 46 meters tall! It is a beautiful place to visit. If you are in China between January 1st and February 15th, I recommend that you become one of the 10 - 15 million visitors to this wonderful event.

Zainab Al Shamsi - Fire, Family and Fun

When people think of Scotland, they often think of beautiful mountains and wonderful, old castles. People don't usually think about big festivals and bonfires. Many cities in Scotland have big festivals every year that end with a big bonfire. On the Isle of Skye, an island in western Scotland, people have fireworks and burn a large wooden boat at the Dunvegan Castle bonfire. I was also excited to attend the Biggar Bonfire in Biggar, Scotland. This tradition is thousands of years old, and is a very special celebration for the small city. The most important part of these celebrations is that they bring together cities and families for a night of safe fun!

Sultan Al Kaabi - Flying over the Desert

I love traveling, which means that I have to fly all over the world. However, I have never flown in a hot air balloon before! This year, I decided to travel to Albuqueraue, New Mexico to experience the colorful Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta. This is not just a balloon ride, it is an entire event. It is a 9-day festival, with over 500 hot air balloons every day. I wanted to start my experience as early as I could, so I joined the 'Dawn Patrol'. This is a group of hot air balloons that leave before sunrise. It was amazing seeing the sunrise over the Southwest American desert. For the rest of the trip, I tried to go on as many hot air balloons as I could, including a strange balloon shaped like a penguin!

Language Tip

Remember, we can use adjectives

Adjectives that end in -ed talk

- 10 to 15 thousand people attend the Harbin Ice Festival every year.
- 2 The tallest ice sculpture is 46 meters tall.
- 3 The Chinese New Year is another popular festival in China.
- 4 One of the reasons people visit Scotland is for the beautiful lakes.
- 5 The 'Dawn Patrol" starts when it is still dark outside.
- 6 The Biggar Bonfire celebration is 500 years old.
- 7 Sultan went on a hot air balloon shaped like an animal.
- 8 There is a hot air balloon race.

4 Use the highlighted sections to answer the question.

- 1 Which highlighted section describes how the person is feeling?
- 2 Which highlighted section describes how something affects someone?

5 Read the text and answer the questions for Reading A.

Huda Al Hashimi - The Culture of the Desert

This year, I wanted to find some of the most interesting festivals in the UAE. One of my favorites was the AI Dhafra Festival in Abu Dhabi. This is a festival that celebrates Bedouin culture. There is so much to see and do! The first thing I did was visit all the shops in the souq. There must be hundreds. I bought a beautiful abaya. Then, I was hungry, so I had some dates, honey and camel milk. They were delicious. Some of the other events are a falconry show and the classic cars show. Perhaps the most popular activity is the Camel Beauty Contest. This year, there were over 20,000 camels. I didn't realize that there were so many different types of camel. There were black camels from Saudi Arabia and red camels from Oman. My favorite part of the celebration was seeing people from all around the world enjoying Emirati culture and traditions. So, if you want to visit a festival a little closer to home, I recommend the Al Dhafra Festival.

- 2 What are two events that people can visit?
- 3 What type of food is at the festival?

Everyone loves the springtime. The smell of freshly planted flowers and the beautiful colors of trees makes this a special time of year. One place in the world that is exceptionally beautiful is in Yeouiseo-ro, South Korea. That is the location of the Yeouido Cherry Blossom Festival. But it isn't just the flowers that bring thousands of people to this festival. The cherry blossom trees are the main attraction. From April 1st to April 9th every year, thousands of people come to this neighborhood of Seoul to see the beautiful sights. And this year, I was one of them. After a long flight from Dubai to Seoul,

South Korea, I was ready to experience this world-famous festival for myself. I knew that there would be a lot of flowers, but I didn't realize that there would be over 87,000 blossoms! 18,000 are cherry blossoms. It was absolutely amazing. There were also 13 different types of flowers. The festival also has traditional Korean arts and foods. I really liked the spicy cabbage called kimchi! It was hard to leave this beautiful place, but I will definitely be back!

This movie, made in 2013, is a documentary about Gabriel, a 10-year-old boy who lives in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He is very poor. He lives with his six brothers and sisters and his old, sick father. Even though Gabriel struggles a lot, there is one thing that brings him joy. It is painting. While the other kids around him laugh at his dream of becoming a great painter, Gabriel does all he can to follow his heart. They tell him he isn't good enough and make fun of his art, but he continues to paint. He begins to hang his paintings everywhere, like on dirty street walls and on garbage cans. Kids begin to admire his courage, so they begin to follow their hearts and do what they love to do. One of the children, Melanie, begins to sing more because she has always wanted to become an opera singer. Another child, Juan, loves to cook and wants to be a great chef. They all begin to chase their own dreams and choose a path towards happiness. Gabriel is "The Path Maker".
