A rescue team arrived to save them after about four hours. There was a big heading saying that 'The Titanic sunk. No lives lost'!! on 16th April. However, it was announced that only 700 people survived whereas 1200 people died.

Exploring the space

What's your opinion on exploring space?

I think we should keep on exploring space for many reasons. Firstly, people will live on Mars. Perhaps there's life there already !Moreover, we should send robots to all planets in our solar system, to find out more about them. Furthermore, space tourism will be really popular in the future .I'd love to go up into space in a rocket. Also, I think one day criminals will be sent to another planet or to a space station, rather than to a prison here. Finally, I think that we will have to find other places to live in the solar system because there won't be enough room on Earth.

My Expedition / Exploration in the future

Exploration is very exciting because it helps us to know more about the space, the sea and the land. I like to be a great explorer one day, like Ibn Jubair and Ibn majid.

When I grow up, I will join the Emirates Mars Mission. I hope to walk on Mars and to drive lunar rover. I will pace the UAE flag on Mars.

In the future, I will dive under the water to explore the Titanic and to see different types of fish.

In my opinion, adventure life is amazing and wonderful, so I will visit many Arab cities to see the beautiful towers and gardens and to know more about Arabs.

Space Exploration

Exploring space is very important because it gives us information about the universe where we live. It also tells us about the solar system and its planets.

space

Scientists were able to study what happened to the body when there is no gravity. They sent spacecraft to the moon and send us photos. After that they were able to walk and drive on the moon. There were unmanned visits to Mars to explore it and to see if there was life there or not.

In my opinion, exploring space is very important even it is very expensive as it helps us to know more about the universe.

Hurricane

A tropical cyclone is a rapidly-rotating storm system characterized by a low-pressure center, strong winds, and a spiral arrangement of thunderstorms that produce heavy rain. Depending on its location and strength, a tropical cyclone is referred to by names such as hurricane, tropical storm, cyclonic storm, tropical depression, and simply cyclone. The term "tropical" refers to the geographical origin of these systems, which usually form over the tropical oceans. The term "cyclone" refers to their cyclonic nature, with wind blowing counterclockwise in the Northern Hemisphere and clockwise in the Southern Hemisphere. The opposite direction of circulation is due to the Coriolis force.

FLOOD

MarketOracle.co.uk
www.MarketOracle.co.uk

A flood is an overflow or accumulation of an expanse of water that submerges land. In the sense of "flowing water", the word may also be applied to the inflow of the tide. Flooding may result from the volume of water within a body of water, such as a river or lake, which overflows or breaks levees, with the result that some of the water escapes its normal boundaries. While the size of a lake or other body of water will vary with seasonal changes in precipitation and snow melt, it is not a significant flood unless such escapes of water endanger land areas used by man like a village, city or other inhabited area.

Wildfire

A wildfire is simply an uncontrolled fire that is wiping out large fields and areas of land. It is typically fires that started out of a lightning strike, or people carelessly starting it, or accidentally, or even arson, that went unnoticed and got out of hand. These fires sometimes burn for days and weeks. They can wipe out an entire forest and destroy almost every organic matter in it.

Wild fires can also be termed forest fires, grass fires, peat fires and bush fires depending on type of vegetation being burnt. Note that these fires tend to thrive in very warm and dry climates, rather than the thick, moist rainforest types

Volcanic Eruptions

A volcanic eruption occurs when molten rock, ash and steam pour through a vent in the earth's crust. Volcanoes are described as active (in eruption), dormant (not erupting at the present time), or extinct (having ceased eruption; no longer active). Some volcanoes explode. Others are slow-flowing fountains of lava, which is hot fluid rock. The eruption of Mount Vesuvius buried the towns of Pompeii and Herculaneum under 20 feet of ash and lava, killing an estimated 20,000 people. The ash that buried the town and the people also preserved them.

Tornado

A tornado is a violent, dangerous, rotating column of air that is in contact with both the surface of the earth and a cumulonimbus cloud or, in rare cases, the base of a cumulus cloud. They are often referred to as a twister or a cyclone, although the word cyclone is used in meteorology in a wider sense, to name any closed low pressure circulation. Tornadoes come in many shapes and sizes, but are typically in the form of a visible condensation funnel, whose narrow end touches the earth and is often encircled by a cloud of debris and dust. Most tornadoes have wind speeds less than 110 miles per hour (177 km/h), are approximately 250 feet (80 m) across,

Tsunami

A tsunami is a series of huge waves that happen after an undersea disturbance, such as an earthquake or volcano eruption. Tsunami is from the Japanese word for “harbor wave.” The waves travel in all directions from the area of disturbance, much like the ripples that happen after throwing a rock. The waves may travel in the open sea as fast as 450 miles per hour. As the big waves approach shallow waters along the coast they grow to a great height and smash into the shore. They can be as high as 100 feet. They can cause a lot of destruction on the shore. They are sometimes mistakenly called “tidal waves,” but tsunami has nothing to do with the tides.

Earthquake

An Earthquake is a sudden shake of the Earth's crust. The vibrations may vary in magnitude. The earthquake has point of origin underground called the "focus". The point directly above the focus on the surface is called the "epicenter". Earthquakes by themselves rarely kill people or wildlife. It is usually the secondary events that they trigger, such as building collapse, fires, tsunamis (seismic sea waves) and volcanoes that are actually the human disaster. As many of these could be avoided by better construction, safety systems, early warning and evacuation planning, the term unnatural disaster is not unwarranted.

A trip to the Desert رحلة إلى الصحراء

Last week, our school arranged a trip to the desert. We reached there at 11 a.m. The weather was hot and dry. There were sand dunes everywhere and an oasis. Camels were everywhere. The Bedouins believe that the camels is a great gift. It was the main source of nourishment, transport, income and even fun. Interestingly, camels find smart ways to survive in the desert. They have long eyelashes to protect their eyes from the dust. Also, they store fat in their humps. The fat gives them energy, so they can go for many days without food or water. While walking in the desert we saw many tents and homes made from the date palms . They are known as 'arishah'. At 12 o'clock, we were very hungry. The Bedouins invited us to their tent. We were amazed by the huge trays full of rice with meat and bottles of fresh camel milk. The food was delicious. After lunch , we tried the Arabic coffee and dates. The taste and smell were fantastic. Around 3 o'clock, we gathered in one area to watch camel- racing. It was really fun. At 5 p.m. we boarded the bus and went back to school. My joy knew no bounds on seeing this wonderful place. Its memory will always remain fresh in my mind.

Describe a historical place in the UAE رحلة إلى معلم تاريخي (مسجد)

There are many historical places in the UAE. One of the most famous historical places is Al Badyah Mosque. My classmates and I went on a school trip to visit that mosque. It is located in Al Badyah region in Fujairah. It is the oldest mosque in the UAE. Many tourists come to visit this historical place everyday. The mosque was built from stones and mud. It has a beautiful garden. The mosque is very small because it was built along time ago. Many people enjoy taking photos there with their families and friends. People are still doing their prayers there. I hope I could have the chance to visit it again soon.

A trip to Al Fahidi Museum (متحف)

There are many beautiful and worth seeing historical places in the UAE. AL Fahidi Museum is one of the oldest building in Dubai. The museum was opened in 1971. Many years ago, it was used as the king's residence and fort. Last week, our school arranged a visit to Al Fahidi Museum. We reached the museum by 10 a.m. The front door has two cannons that were once used to defend the fort. The artifacts, old furniture, traditional weapons, Al Arish house and the huge dhow taught us a great lesson on how people used to live in the past. We were excited to see the simple games played by the children and we really enjoyed walking through the traditional opened air -market and souq. The spice souq just looked real! The sea section was my favorite. watching the pearl divers searching for oysters was amazing. Life was difficult! At 12 p.m, we get on the bus and went back to the school. It was a very educative and enjoyable trip. I am proud of visiting such a historical place. Honestly, my joy knew no bounds on seeing this wonderful place. Its memory will always remain fresh in my mind.

Life in the UAE

The UAE was found in 1971. Most of its land was sandy desert, so it was very difficult for people to inhabit this difficult environment. The Bedouins discovered sources of water known as oases. They planted date gardens and built their home known as areesh in the desert . Camel was a great gift to the Bedouin. They used it to travel , race and carry their loads. Also, the camel's milk and meat were a source of nourishment. Moreover, the camel's hide and hair were used to make goods and tents. The coastline was another source of life as people went fishing and peal diving in the sea. Life in the past was very difficult.

What is your favorite sport? الرياضة المفضلة

My favorite sport is football. I started playing this sport when I was seven years old. I play it once a week in the club. I often play with my friends in the evening. All you need to play football - A Ball, Some Friends, and a Soccer Goal. I love this sport because it is fun and helps me stay fit and healthy.

What are your plans for next weekend. خطط الأسبوع القادم

I am going to the dentist on Sunday morning (nothing serious). Ugh! I hate going to a dentist. On Monday I'm going to go shopping. I have to get a couple of things for school - copybooks, books, pencils. I think, Mum will go with me because she has to pay for it all! We could buy some clothes, too. I need a new pair of jeans. On Tuesday, I'm going to the cinema with my cousin, Maha. We bought the tickets online last week. We are going to watch an adventure film. On Wednesday, I am going to go to the beach with some friends for a picnic. On Thursday, I am going to visit my grandmother. She lives on her own and always enjoys some company. I am going to my friend's birthday party on Friday evening. I won't be staying there long. On Saturday, I am going to stay home cleaning my room and revising my English test.
