Reading

Reading Comprehension:

Directions: Read the passage and answer the questions.

The seas between Arab countries and East Africa and India seem like the perfect place for sailing. However, it can be dangerous because the water is not very deep in some places and the weather can change very suddenly. Over thousand years ago, people in these areas build dhow boats that could travel easily in these seas. They were not heavy and had long triangular sails that could turn so they could sail in any kind of wind. People used dhows mostly for fishing. Later, larger dhows sailed across the sea to other countries. They often carried things like fish, fruit, and wood.

Today, modern dhows have engines, but you can still find traditional ones too. You can visit the Dhow Boatyard of Qatar in Doha and see how people make these boats there. The best way to learn about dhow boats and see a number of traditional activities is to go to the Traditional Dhow Festival in Katara, Qatar where you might even see Fathal Kheir. This is one of the biggest traditional Dhows, and, during the Festival, it leaves from Katara to sail to other countries in the Arabian Gulf, just like people did in the past. In my opinion, Traditional Dhow Festival in Katara is one of the most popular festival in the region.

1. What is the text mainly about?

- A. how people make Dhow boat

Reading Comprehension:

Directions: Read the passage and answer the questions.

spots around their eyes. Many people think they are cute. But pandas, which live in central China, are actually an endangered species. That means there are not many pandas left. In fact, there are only about 1,600 pandas in the wild, and only about 150 more pandas live in zoos. Very few baby pandas are born each year.

Pandas are endangered because the forests where they live are being destroyed. Pandas eat a plant called bamboo, and they need large forests to find enough bamboo to eat. Humans have moved into parts of the pandas' forests and cut down many trees and plants.

Fortunately, some people are trying to save the pandas. The Chinese government has created more than 30 nature reserves to protect the forests. Environmental groups from around the world are also working with China to help the pandas. Pandas face an uncertain future. Perhaps if people are more careful, children will still be able to admire pandas in 100 years.
